13th Annual East Central MO Swine Seminar & Trade Show

March 30th, 2021

Dear Producers,

We are excited to announce the 13th Annual East Central MO Passion for Pigs Seminar & Trade Show will be held on March 30th, 2021 at

That legacy continues today.

John and Joan Vatterott, owners since 1978, have invested in significantly upgrading the facility in a way that meets the 21st century tastes of its clients but also restores its old-world charm and preserves the natural beauty of the land. They also recognize that those are the qualities that make Cedar Creek special and the characteristics that facilitate its corporate guests to refresh, to focus and to connect just as generation after generation have come to Cedar Creek to do.

We welcome you to experience for yourself the allure of Cedar Creek, a rare gem alive with charm and natural beauty.

From Louisiana Purchase To Retreat For Baseball Legend

Situated on the historic Lewis and Clark Trail, the first formal purchase of the land is recorded in 1800 with a 6,987 acre land grant to Baptiste Duchouquette by Don Carlos Dehault DeLassas, the Lt. Governor of the Spanish Province of Upper Louisiana.

The Spaniards, who controlled much of the territory west of the Mississippi River, encouraged pioneers from the East to settle in the region. In 1801 Napoleon negotiated secret treaties with Spain that transferred Louisiana from Spain to France. In order to finance his wars, Napoleon sold the Louisiana Territory to the United States. For the next 56 years the land grant, soon to become part of the state of Missouri, was transferred and divided among the heirs of Duchouquette. Cedar Creek's Rock House, which is now a guest house, was likely the first dwelling on the property built during this time period.

In 1857 Prussian immigrant George Ernst purchased a tract of the land grant for $400. Though he would not live long enough to enjoy the property himself, it would remain in his family for several generations. David Ernst, appointed administrator of the estate after George Ernst's death in 1857, built the Manor House as a residence for his wife and children. In the years following the Ernst family ownership, portions of the land changed hands five more times.

Cedar Creek reached celebrity status in 1931 with its sale to St. Louis Cardinal's pitcher Burleigh Grimes. Grimes, nicknamed "Old Stubblebeard" for his refusal to shave on the days he was pitching, is often thought to be one of the greatest spitball pitchers of all time. While riding high on his successful season of 17 wins with the St. Louis Cardinals, he bought Cedar Creek as a get-away during the off-season. Grimes was responsible for adding the statuesque white pillars to the Manor House, possibly to make the house statelier.

Grimes kept the property even after he was traded from the Cardinals. He retired in 1934 and was inducted into the Hall of Fame in 1964. In 1939 Burleigh and Laura were divorced and Laura was granted the lot, which she sold in 1941.

Transport yourself back to the heyday of the Old West by strolling through Cedar Creek's Western Town! Charles F. Vatterott Jr. built the Western Town in the 1950s (based off old Hollywood movie lot photos) so that his 17 children and numerous grandchildren had a place to play. In 2012, part of the western themed town was transformed into an event venue and restaurant, now aptly named the Town Hall Tap Room at Cedar Creek.
